

BECOMING BIGFOOT

MENTAL TIER 2

The change is the result of a spell gone wrong. Hoping to prove the existence of the creature known as sasquatch once and for all, the player's team of bigfoot hunters has turned to dabbling in magic to draw out the elusive beast. Using alleged sasquatch hairs from the team's previous investigations, the team's resident wizard casts a spell to draw the creature out of hiding, but something has gone terribly wrong, and instead, the team is changing into sasquatches themselves.

MOVES

Nature's Bounty: Whenever the player eats unprocessed food harvested directly from the wild, they take one change in an attribute of their choice. If any of their points are damaged, those will be replenished. mindless monster remains.

CAST

GUY BEASLEY (HE/THEY)

The team's resident occult expert, Guy is fascinated by the stranger side of the bigfoot phenomenon. An ardent believer in interdimensional bigfoot, he seeks to prove that sasquatch is more than a flesh and blood creature. He is a practicing witch (or wizard, as he prefers to be called—not for gender reasons, but just because it sounds more grandiose), and it was his plan to draw out the beast using magic.

SALLY WARREN (SHE/HER)

The newest member of the team, Sally is a diehard bigfoot believer due to an encounter she had as a youth, but doesn't put much stock in Guy's ideas, preferring the idea that bigfoot is a flesh and blood creature. She is fairly scientifically-minded and is studying to become a primatologist.

TRILLIUM (SHE/THEY)

The matriarch of the local sasquatch band. She is a sorceress who is dedicated to the old ways, and to keeping the existence of her kind a secret from humans. She has the power to communicate with even ordinary humans using telepathic messages.

FLINT (SHE/THEY)

Trillium's daughter, who is fascinated with humans, much to her mother's chagrin. Flint is currently seeking a mate, and is particularly intrigued by Guy. She is also studying sorcery under her mother's tutelage, though she has a long way to go.

POPPY (HE/THEY)

Trillium's son, who is also seeking a mate, though he's wary of humans. Despite this, he is overly trusting and prone to gullibility.

THE AMMONITE VALLEY SQUATCHERS: DOT NEELING (SHE/HER) AND RICH DEXTER (HE/HIM)

A rival team of bigfoot hunters, the Ammonite Valley Squatchers are considered by some to be expert researchers, and by others, even in the bigfoot community, as grifters and hoaxers who are in it mostly for the money. They happen to be conducting an investigation (read: filming a made-for-TV mockumentary) in the same general area as the player.

INTRO

The player is a bigfoot-hunter who has come to the Glabra Forest in the Midwestern United States for their latest expedition. They are meeting the other two members of their team, Guy and Sally, at the site. As they arrive, Guy explains his wild plan: using alleged sasquatch hairs found in previous investigations, he is going to cast a spell to draw the local sasquatches out of hiding. Sally is annoyed by the absurdity of this plan, but Guy is insistent that this will be the team's most successful mission ever.

Once the spell is cast, the team waits in anticipation, but as the night goes on, it begins to look like nothing is going to happen. Eventually, the team will have to go to bed for the night.

Guy Beasley

THE CHANGE

Guy is not an especially competent witch (or wizard). While his spell does have the intended effect, albeit not immediately, it does this because it begins the Change, transforming the team members into sasquatches, which draws the local sasquatch band's attention.

The player sleeps deeply, and takes three changes of their choice in any attribute(s). They awaken to find Guy missing, a clear trail visible in the dirt where he's apparently been dragged off, sleeping bag and all.

BUILDUP

From here, the player can explore the forest using the provided encounter table. The trail left by the sleeping bag is visible in places, and disappears in others, so keeping up with it will be a struggle. The player should periodically take two changes of their choice, in any attribute(s).

CLIMAX

Guy wasn't actually kidnapped; he followed Flint of his own free will, using his sleeping bag to carry his supplies. The player may or may not be able to convince him to return. Both Flint and Poppy may express a romantic interest in the player, though Poppy will be more interested if the player is changed, whereas Flint is interested either way.

Trillium will reveal that she knows the way to break the spell that is causing the Change, but she will not do it unless the player agrees to help her keep the secret of her kind's existence. The Ammonite Valley Squatchers have successfully recorded evidence, meaning that in order to convince Trillium to break the spell, that evidence will need to be located and destroyed, which may lead to a confrontation with the rival team.

Trillium

ENDINGS

If the player is able to enlist Trillium's help in breaking the spell, they will return to normal if they haven't reached Permanence. Otherwise, they may either choose to live among the sasquatches, or attempt to return to the human world. Trillium will be resistant to the latter.

NOTES

Sasquatch vocal cords can produce human speech, but most of them don't have any knowledge of human languages.

0-2 The player reaches a muddy area where the trail is particularly obvious. In addition to the trail from the sleeping bag, there are also two sets of bigfoot tracks here.

3-5 The player hears a bigfoot howl in the distance. If they answer it, they take one change in any attribute.

6-8 The player hears wood being knocked against trees in the distance. If they replicate the sound, they take one change in any attribute. If they try to follow the sound to its source, they will locate a strange structure made from fallen trees, though the one causing the knocks is nowhere in sight. There is also a stream running through the forest here, where fish can be caught.

9-10 The player locates an incredibly unsettling and lifelike bigfoot sculpture left over from a hoax photoshoot by the Ammonite Valley Squatchers..

11-13 The player finds an area where many fresh berries are growing, but something is odd. A test of MA will reveal a hidden trail cam; if the test is successful, the player will realize that it isn't the style of camera used by their own team.

14-15 The player comes across the campsite of the Ammonite Valley Squatchers. It is currently empty, as the team is out in the forest shooting footage.

16-17 The player encounters Rich wandering the forest in a gorilla costume.

18-19 The player comes across the Ammonite Valley Squatchers, who are currently filming a scene.

20-21 The player comes across a bigfoot trap set up by the Ammonite Valley Squatchers. Poppy is trapped inside.

physical aptitude mental

You grow a thin layer of fur across your body. It's thicker than human vellus hair, but still not that long. Your eyes change color, becoming dark and beady.

A tapetum lucidum develops in each eye, making them reflective and granting you improved night vision. Your olfaction has also improved considerably.

Your fur becomes much thicker, and covers your entire body except for your face, hands, and feet. Your cranium forms an elongated shape.

You can produce deep, infrasonic howls, and hear them, as well, but you also have a tendency to absentmindedly make monkey-like noises.

You grow to a huge size, seven to nine feet tall, with more robust features across your body.

You can both send and receive telepathic thought speak. You can still speak normally, but isn't this much better?

permanence

You are forever a sasquatch, a creature of the wild. You are the stuff of myths and legends, spoken of around the campfire at night.

no going back

You feel an instinctive nervousness around humans. They're a threat. Sasquatch musk is smelling pretty appealing now, though...

Being exposed to the elements bothers you less. You're at home in nature, regardless of the weather, and your speed and stamina have increased. You feel hungry, though. Your caloric needs are much greater.

Your gait unconsciously shifts toward the iconic "bigfoot walk". You're finding that you're less bothered by sasquatch musk.

You feel a newfound superhuman strength and power. At the same time, your natural affinity for climbing is reawakening, dredged up from your deep evolutionary past.

You crave uncooked food. Sure, it's fine cooked, but why waste time cooking it? Food gathered from the wild sounds better, anyway.

mental fortitude physical

Your body naturally produces a powerful musky odor that's vaguely reminiscent of a skunk, or perhaps rotting flesh.