

Xavier

After fainting from the stress of losing their first Pakmon battle, the player is transformed through the wrongful application of a dubious Pakmon healing serum. It was never meant for human use, changing the biology of the player into its target form.

You Teach Me: When the player has at least one change in PF, they can use TMs (Teachable Moves) to learn new moves, at the cost of two changes for each move learned (any attribute).

The Power That's Inside: In tests that involve opposing Pakmon, the player draws two less cards in all attributes. Each change in an attribute adds an additional card drawn for that attribute when used to oppose other Pokémon.

Pakmon Notes: Earth attacks beat electric type Pakmon, electric attacks beat water type Pakmon, and water attacks beat earth type Pakmon. Duglet is a earth type, Voltbol is an electric type, and Starpew is a water type.

CAST

REM (PRONOUNS SAME AS THE PLAYER'S)

The player's younger stepsibling and their rival. However enthusiastic about Pakmon the player is, Rem is more enthusiastic. They know everything there is to know about Pakmon, sharing their knowledge readily with anyone who will listen. They aspire to be a Pakmon master, but they are nervous about if they can really do it. Defeating their cool older sibling in a Pakmon battle is the only way to know for sure if they have what it takes.

KIM (SHE/HER)

The player's stepmother who adopted the player at a young age. She is gentle and kind, though expects more maturity and discipline from the player than she does from Rem. Kim is worried about her kids getting so enamored with Pakmon that they might want to leave home to try becoming Pakmon masters. She purposely asked Professor Wolfrando to pick three unappealing and non-wild caught Pakmon for her kids to choose from, in hope that they will lose interest in Pakmon altogether.

PROFESSOR WOLFRANDO (HE/HIM)

A "professional" Pakmon breeder on Galiup Island. He runs a Pakmon "puppy mill", breeding sought after Pakmon with Blobos in miserable cramped conditions. He also does research into developing Pakmon healing products with government funding, but his methods are as cheap as he wants his products to be. Since he has no emotional attachment to Pakmon, he'll battle using any of the many Blobos that he has on hand.

TEAM X: TAMMY (SHE/HER), KOL (HE/HIM), AND THEIR LEADER, XAVIER (HE/THEY)

A trio of Pakmon snatchers who take the law into their own hands to bust up labs that abuse Pakmon.

Team X will steal abused Pakmon to release them back into nature, but each team member devotes themselves to only one Pakmon (Kol's Polygorn and Tammy's Taurus). Xavier also has a special hatred for "Pakmon Masters" or young brats who collect and hoard Pakmon.

Because they resort to terrorism and sabotage to achieve their goals, any witnesses to their crimes must be captured and have their memory erased by Xavier's Hypnoid. Their secret base is built into the top of a mountain, deep in the forests of Galiup island. They have a helicopter that they use to reach the mainland and attack the lab.

INTRO

The player is accompanying Rem to Professor Wolfrando's lab, where they will receive their first Pakmon as part of Rem's 18th birthday present that they begged their mom for. Professor Wolfrando gives the players a selection of Duglet, Voltbol, and Starpew.

Rem is too nervous about picking their first Pakmon, so they plead for the player to pick first. After the player picks, Rem will pick whichever Pakmon has a type advantage over the player's Pakmon. Professor Wolfrando takes the remaining one and tells the player and Rem to scram so he can get back to work, giving them Pakmon healing potions on Rem's insistence.

THE CHANGE

When the player and Rem are playing with their new Pakmon, Rem eventually leads the player to the town outskirts, behind the Professor's lab, to have their first Pakmon battle. Using their typing advantage, Rem is able to beat the player easily. When the player's Pakmon faints, the player also starts to get dizzy and passes out, waking up deep in the forest some time later, with two changes to any attribute(s) and two damage to any Mental attributes.

When they passed out, Rem panicked and used one of the Professor's botched healing potions on the player. This starts the change, transforming the player into whatever Pakmon Rem picked. Rem then runs off to get help.

Tammy and Kol find the passed-out player as they are preparing to launch a raid on the Professor's lab, so they drag the player into the woods to get them a safe distance from the explosives they are planting. Right as the player wakes up, the explosives detonate in the distance and Team X begins their raid on the lab.

At this time, Rem witnesses the attack and is defeated in a Pakmon battle by Xavier.

BUILDUP

The player must navigate back to the lab, avoiding the dangerous wild Pakmon that inhabit the forest and are attracted to the player's changes. When they reach the lab, they find Tammy and Kol battling against the professor. If they take the professor's side, after the fight he'll try to capture the player in a Pakball if they have one or more changes in PA. If the player takes Team X's side, they also attempt to capture the player after the battle to leave no witnesses and/or assume that the player is some kind of Pakmon-human hybrid experiment of the professor. Either way, escaping a Pakball requires a successful test to MF. On each successive escape attempt, the player draws one less card.

After the players defeat the Professor or Team X, they learn that Xavier captured Rem and intends to wipe their mind clean at the top of Team X's base. The secret base is only accessible through a stone door behind a waterfall, or a pitch-black cave passageway.

At the lab, there are TMs the player can use to give themselves new Pakmon Moves depending on what Pakmon they are turning into. If they are Duglet, learning ROCK BREAK lets them bust open the stone door. If they are Voltbol, learning LIGHT lets them illuminate the cave passageway. If they are Starpew, learning WATERCLIMB lets them ascend the waterfall. Otherwise, it is a very difficult climb to reach the top of Team X's base. They can also learn the THIEF Move, a shadow type Move that is super effective against Xavier's Hypnoid.

CLIMAX

At the top of the base, the player arrives just as Xavier uses his Hypnoid to erase Rem's mind of any aspiration to be a Pakmon Master. However, their dreams are not so easily forgotten and Xavier realizes that he cannot make them give up. He plans to throw Rem off the side of the mountain to prevent them from ever becoming a Pakmon Master. The player and Rem must team up to defeat Xavier's Hypnoid, though Rem is still dazed and their orders may not be coherent without the player's encouragement.

ENDINGS

After the final battle against Xavier, the player can reverse their transformation at a Pakplace's healing machine, if they have not reached Permanence or were not captured in a Pakball. The players and Rem can punish Professor Wolfrando and Xavier as they see fit. Tammy and Kol will agree that Xavier took things too far, and they will apologize profusely for their leader's actions. They still don't want to go to jail for doing what they believed was right.

If Kim learns about anything that happened with the player and Rem, she refuses to let Rem ever touch another Pakmon till they are 21. If the player reaches Permanence, they become a full Pakmon eventually, either released into the wild by Xavier or remaining by Rem's side for the rest of their life.

Hey, here is a cool trick, you can actually use whatever words for things you want when you are playing alone with friends.

You lose all your hair and your skin turns a earthen shade of brown. Your nose puffs up round and pink, while your eyes shrink, beady and black.

mental

You start saying your Pakmon name at the end of every sentence. You have to, it's a compulsion ingrained in your language, even in how you think.

Your legs fuse together into one long stalk that embeds itself into the ground. Your arms start to shrink and wither into useless noodles. Unless MF has 2 changes, you can't move.

Your sentences consist of only a single word and your Pakmon name. You gain a rudimentary understanding of what other Pakmon are saying when they speak.

Your neck absorbs your torso and arms, sealing your mouth shut. You are just a little head poking out of the ground, but you can swim through the earth, allowing you to move at high speeds.

You can only say your Pakmon name repeatedly as a means of communication. You can converse with Pakmon easily, while humans don't seem to understand you at all, but you still understand them.

permanence

Whatever is human in you may remain, for now, but you are a Duglet at heart. You can no longer Succumb on MF tests to escape a Pakball. In fact, you feel like you're about to Evolve!...

no going back

You can sense other Pakmon through vibrations in the earth. Ones below you are specially noticeable and you want to seek them out.

You learn a third Move. Pick one:
-Earthquake OR -Recoil Blow. You have ten uses of each Move. You can only use your Moves when Your Trainer commands you.

You find it comforting to kick up and disturb the soil behind you as you move. It's a compulsion that you can't get rid of, except when it would slow you down.

You learn another Move. Pick one:
-Dig OR -Head Butt. You have five uses of each Move. You can only use your Moves when a person tells you to.

Your skin is very sensitive everywhere except your scalp. You much prefer the shade to the open sun when possible.
